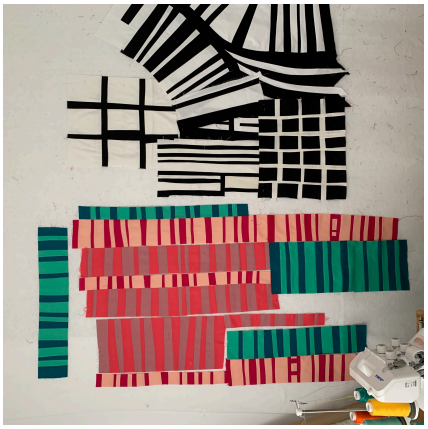
Resolving Design Issues:
Making friends with the creative process and getting unstuck

Maritza will walk us through her design process and share tips for resolving creative blocks.

BRING YOUR OWN unfinished object (UFO) or work-in-progress (WIP) to discuss in small groups!



Maritza Soto comes from a family of seamstresses from Puerto Rico. She learned to sew by hand as a child but only took up machine sewing later in life. Having earned her BFA from Parsons School of Design in Illustration, her disenchantment with the cut-throat competitive aspect of making art for hire led her to shift mediums. Inspired by the quilters of Gees Bend and Denyse Schmidt, she rediscovered her passion for playing with form, space, and color through sewing. She is a member of the CMQG and teaches quilting and patchwork at Gather Here.
